

Herzlichen Glückwunsch! Sie haben bestanden!

ZUM BESTEHEN 80 % oder höher

Lernen Sie weiter

BEWERTUNG

100 %

Test your knowledge on listening, responding, and including

GESAMTPUNKTZAHL 3

1. After you finish giving a presentation, and an audience member asks your team about additional information on your topic. Your coworker is answering the question thoroughly, but you notice that the rest of your audience has tuned out. How can you re-engage your audience? Select all that apply.

1 / 1 Punkten

☒ Redirect to a new question

✓ Richtig

If you notice your audience is losing interest, you can redirect to a new question or ask a question to your audience to re-engage them.

☒ Ask a question to the audience

✓ Richtig

If you notice your audience is losing interest, you can redirect to a new question or ask a question to your audience to re-engage them.

☐ Interrupt your coworker

☐ Repeat the question

2. You answer a question from an audience member, who then seems confused. You conclude that you didn't understand the question. What should you have done differently to avoid the issue? Select all that apply.

1 / 1 Punkten

☒ Listened to the full question

✓ Richtig

In this scenario, two actions could have assisted you in answering the question: listen to the full question or repeat the question to clarify. These strategies can help you answer a question directly and completely.

☐ Provided more context for their answer

☐ Elaborated more on the topic

☒ Repeated the question to clarify

✓ Richtig

In this scenario, two actions could have assisted you in answering the question: listen to the full question or repeat the question to clarify. These strategies can help you answer a question directly and completely.

3. Your audience has several questions after your presentation, and you may not have enough time to answer them all. How should you proceed?

1 / 1 Punkten

☒ Keep responses brief and follow up after the presentation

☐ Involve the whole audience

☐ Understand the context of each question

☐ Repeat each question

✓ Richtig

To answer more questions in less time, keep each response brief and to the point. This way, you answer a question directly and have more time to move onto the next one. After the Q&A, you can follow up with any questions that still need clarification.